

The True Meaning of "Friend"

The definition of the word "friend" is a controversial one.

Some think that it means the person who supports you when you think your life is done.

Some think that it means the person who's by your side if you're ever alone.

Personally, I think they are all true.

They should help you when you moan.

They should also help if you're lone.

They can help when you're down and can't get up.

They will always be by your side.

Basically, they are like hands that comfort and support you if you trip.

And make sure that your eyes never drip.
