Feedback and follow-up actions from the previous school year in brief:

- A specific value can be promoted by different subjects. The department heads can share their goals in the joint subject-head meetings.
- The head of each group can discuss the specific values involved in the activities held and introduce them to students before the start of the activity.
- The Discipline Week only lasted for three days. It is by no means adequate. A whole week of activities is suggested for the next school year.
- The workshop arranged by Discipline Action Group was too brief to enhance the skills and knowledge of the teachers to disciplining students with love. It is suggested that a more well-organized workshop can be held for teachers in the coming school year. Sharing sessions can be held to create a learning circle.
- Exhibitions on special dates can be organized to arouse the students' awareness of their national identity.
- More publicity work should be done to promote the participation of voluntary service.
