

I am a bird with magical powers. I can speak like a human. One day, I flew to CNEC Christian College and settled down. However, I found out the students of this school had some bad habit.

They waste energy and resources on campus every day. They didn't know how to be environmental-friendly. For example, when they were hot, they would turn on the air conditioner at the first time instead of using the fan. Also, when they left the classroom, they won't turn off the light. I flew into the classroom and helped them to turn it off and murmured, 'what an irresponsible behaviour! If they don't change these habits, I must remind them. Otherwise, they won't understand the seriousness of the problem.'

After that, I kept watching over them carefully. Suddenly, I saw some students playing in the toilet. They used water to toy their classmates and the tap was tuned on continuously. I felt really angry. I thought that I have to stop them. I flew to them and shouted, 'Stop! What are you guys doing? You guys are wasting the energy.' They stopped toying and stammered, 'Er... er...Sorry, we... we didn't understand the seriousness when we were playing. Please... please forgive us.' I knew that they felt sorry and regretted so I calmed down and said, 'Okay, please don't be naughty next time and tell your classmates not to be unfriendly to the environment.' They promised me.

In the end, they really didn't waste the energy and resources after the experience. I felt satisfied. I sighed, 'At least after they understood the influence to the environment, they were willing to change their terrible habit. That's fine!'
