

Magical bird verses wasteful students

Yes, I was the magical bird living a CNEC Christian College. I found that the students there are so wasteful. Let me tell you what unacceptable things they did.

One day, when I was enjoying my crispy bread crumb, I heard a mischievous noise. I could quickly identify the noise was from a boy called Marcus Leung because I always heard his voice. He yelled, 'Let's keep switching the lights of the corridor to scare people!' I was anxious and pleaded, 'Please... please don't do this! You will waste energy and frighten my kids.' Of course, I was far away from him so he couldn't hear me. Soon, the lights kept switching on and off and the students on that floor screamed loudly. Almost the whole school could hear it. Luckily, the discipline master came and roared at them. The mischievous students apologized. However, I think they were unforgivable because I saw my brown family left our home in panic out of my sight. I thought I was daydreaming until I noticed them flapping their wings quickly. I couldn't believe that I lost my family just because of these misbehaved students.

After this unforgettable thing, I kept seeing those students waste food and energy. They kept complaining things like, 'the sandwich of the canteen is too hard to chew!' and threw it away the next second.' In summer, they often suggested, 'don't turn off the air-con! It would be so hot if we turn it off.' I could notice the grossing smell in the rubbish bin.

I knew that I needed to stop their wasteful behaviour. As aforementioned, I was a magical bird. First, I decided to turn Marcus Leung into a bird to let him know how I felt. I whispered a spell, 'Birdy, birdy, birdy!' Suddenly, Marcus was turned into a bird and other students kept silent. When they realized that Marcus was turned into a bird, they giggled and laughed. Actually, his blue feathers and red eyes were really hilarious.

I hoped no one would provoke others but other students kept wasting food and energy like I said before. This time, I wanted to be more serious about this problem. I decided to cut off the power of the school and remove all the food. I whispered a spell again, 'Clear, clear, clear!' The lights were switched off and the air-cons stopped working. The teachers and students were all shocked.

Looking at them being less wasteful satisfied me! They had stopped wasting food and energy. I praised them in my mind, 'They have learnt a lesson.' The campus became aromatic as there was less rubbish. They finally understood how people in poor countries studies without lights and air-con. Soon, my family came back! Maybe they thought the outside world was worse than before. When I was thinking, Marcus touched my shoulder and groaned, 'When will you turn me back into a human being?' I didn't know how he knew me, but I thought it was much more peaceful than before!
