Dear Miss Chow,

I am writing to enquire about more details regarding the 'Health Cooking' cooking class. It has caught my attention after I saw the advertisement from your website as I am deeply interested in learning cooking.

Firstly, I have been consuming take-away food for a period of time already. Frequently consuming take-away food has made me worried about my own health as it is unquestionably very high in oil and contains a huge amount of fat. Therefore, I would be grateful if you can provide more details on what cuisine we are going to be cooking throughout the class. In addition, as I am allergic to peanuts, I would like to ask if any food we will have to cook that is made out of peanuts and there are any ways to avoid it.

Secondly, I found that the date of the cooking class is not stated in the advertisement. As I am only available at weekends, I would love to know about the date and time of classes. I would also appreciate it if you could inform me if I could choose the number of lessons to attend each week. What's more, I would like to ask if there is any age requirement as I am thirteen years old only.

Thirdly, as I am a student, I have a limited budget. That's why I would love to obtain more information concerning the price such as if it is possible for me to split the price and pay it monthly. Furthermore, I would be interested in knowing if there will be any special discounts for early birds and students.

Last but not least, I would like to know when the deadline for applying will be since I would like to take some more time to seek approval from my parents and decide whether I should join the class or not.

Thank you for your help and assistance. I am looking forward to hearing your reply at your earliest convenience.

Yours sincerely,
Chris Wong
