

Dear Ms. Ng,

I am writing to propose a new project of starting a new club in our school. I would like to suggest starting a brand-new club called ‘Adventure Club,’ which would undoubtedly be a worthwhile project. The details and reasons of starting this club will be presented as follows.

As our school is keen on developing students holistically, the Adventure Club can cultivate students’ positive values and promote active learning for students through stepping out of their comfort zone and challenging themselves. These align with the aim and theme of this school year — ‘Be proactive’ and ‘Embrace life.’ A variety of outdoor activities would be offered by the Adventure Club, from hiking to camping, from kayaking to windsurfing. Kayaking is an activity where challengers are required to move in a small water vessel with aid of double-bladed peddle while windsurfing is an activity of sailing on the sea using a surfboard. Students may even try ziplining, which they can ride on a steel cable on a belt between two points on a valley. If the proposal of starting the Adventure Club is approved, we will kindly cooperate with the Outward Bound Hong Kong, which is an organization with high credibility and has collaborated with hundreds of local schools in Hong Kong with the assistance of the teacher-in-charge, Mr. Wong. They provide professional coaches who not only create adventurous opportunities for students to learn, but also carefully manage the risks inherent in the activities. The activities of the Adventure Club will be held once a month for a day trip and an overnight camp during long holidays. Senior form students who love exploring are targeted to be our members.

Apart from the details of the club, here are the reasons for starting the Adventure Club. Due to the widespread Covid-19, students have fewer opportunities to explore around. Joining adventurous activities organized by our club can admittedly add colours to students’ dull and lifeless daily life. Tackling public exams, students are trapped into the cycle of pressure. It is no wonder that the mentality, morality and academic results are of equal importance. Participating in such activities can strengthen the bonding between students. Their interpersonal and collaborating skills can also be improved by communicating with one another when they face different hardship. I am sure that vulnerable students will learn resilience in the face of adversity. This will definitely be a life-changing experience for them as they can know more about themselves thoroughly. Besides the benefits brought to students, it also positively influences the school. With the phenomenal achievements of students, a good image and impression can be presented. As students are trained to be leaders, they can help teachers organize events in a bid to reduce their workload.

We believe that this club will undeniably bring immense benefits to both students and the school. We kindly hope that this project will be granted permission to bring students a remarkable school life.

Yours sincerely,

Chris Wong
